

PAPEETE, TAHITI TO LAUTOKA

Say goodbye to Papeete, capital of French Polynesia, as we head to the romantic shores of Moorea, a cluster of peaks wrapped in a blue lagoon; Raiatea, a magical place steeped in local mythology; and the honeymooners' favorite, lush Bora Bora, where we overnight. Two leisurely days at sea bring us Pago Pago, the capital of American Samoa, which shelters in the lee of mountains draped in rainforest. Next, we head to Apia in Samoa, crossing the International Date Line. Just outside this port, there's a museum where you can find out why the great Scottish writer Robert Louis Stevenson spent his final years here. Another day at sea brings us to the dreamy island nation of Fiji, where we call first at the capital, Suva, to learn more about the seafaring people who have built this country over more than 3,000 years, before sailing around the coast to our final port, Lautoka.
